

WOLF URGES U.S. TO INTERCEDE FOR ROUMANIAN JEWS

Bimon Wolf, of this city, who, despite his eighty-one years, takes as keen an interest as ever in the welfare of the Jewish race, has interceded in behalf of the Roumanian Jews.

He and other prominent Jews in this country have revived the movement to secure civil rights for the 3,000,000 Jews of Roumania, a people deprived for generations of the rights of citizenship.

Mr. Wolf has written a letter to President Wilson asking him to refuse any aid or assurance to Roumania through the mission now here until a promise has been exacted to give such treatment to the Jews as the Russian government recently has given.

When John Hay was Secretary of State he took up the cause of the Roumanian Jews and urged the Roumanian government to grant them civil rights in accordance with certain provisions of the treaty of Berlin.

Mr. Hay was only recently recalled, and this Government has practically told the matter was none of its business.

Inasmuch as Russia has made important concessions to the Jews, it is believed that Roumania may be induced to act favorably.

WHAT THE THEATERS PROMISE NEXT WEEK

Various Attractions on Schedule at City's Playhouses.

National.

Washington is to have the novel experience of having a musical production play a "two weeks' stand" here. "What Is Love" the musical comedy which is having the first week of its existence now at the National, will be the attraction for the second week of the midsummer season of musical attractions which Joseph E. Howard is presenting.

The interesting story, catchy and melodious music, and very excellent company have been so warmly received that the producer has decided to extend the run for another week, and then follow with others of his own composition.

Love and politics, so blended as to make a very palatable menu, make the story that keeps interest at a high pitch, and the musical score contains a number of song hits that the audience goes out humming or whistling.

B. F. Keith's.

Two features head the bill at B. F. Keith's next week. Emma Carus and Larry Comer will offer a new potpourri of their popular songs, stories, and patter. Conroy and Le Maire, two of the best exponents of "black-face" humor, will be seen this time in their newest and greatest success, "For Sale, a Ford."

The added attractions will be "The Blue Paradise" features, Ted Lorrain and Francis Pritchard, in their series of seven songs and dances, Linna's Classic Dancers, featuring Mlle. Una and an entrancing corps de ballet; Shanty and Norton, singers with Trimmings; Harry Holman and company, in "Adam Killjoy"; Nella Allen, a winsome chanteuse; the Garcinett brothers, European eccentric comedians, hat throwing comedians; the pipe organ recitals, and the Hearst-Pathe news pictorial.

Next Sunday at 3 and 8:15 p. m. at Keith's the bill will keep all the stars of this week's program.

Poll's.

The Poll Players this season have presented the revivals of some of the most celebrated of Broadway successes. Next week they will present "Uncle Tom's Cabin," a drama of the old school.

In offering this play, which was dramatized from the story of the same name by Harriet Beecher Stowe, a splendid acting version of Messrs. Harkins and Barbour will be used, which will mark the first time that this new and only authentic version of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" has been presented in Washington. It is the same as that produced at the Academy of Music, New York, by William A. Brady with an all star cast.

Headed by Miss Florence Eitzenhouse and Robert W. Frazer, the Poll Players will be augmented for the week with a number of well-known professionals. A quartet will sing those celebrated Southern melodies that are a part of the spirit of this great story.

Belasco.

"The Very Idea," described as a new comedy in three acts by Wm. LeBaron, will have its metropolitan premiere, in the Belasco Theater next Monday night. Unlike the majority of new plays destined for New York presentation, "The Very Idea" comes to Washington after having been thoroughly tested and proved in New Haven, Conn., and Albany, N. Y., last week.

Messrs. Anderson and Weber announce that their offering is a comedy, pure and simple. In the cast are several players well known to Washington theatergoers, viz. A. H. Van Buren, William P. Carleton, Harold Hendes, John Webster, Miss Sydney Shields, Josephine Drake, Florence Oakley, Mabel Allan, and Ruth Collins.

Loew's Columbia.

"The Love That Lives," a film drama that features Pauline Frederick, will be shown at Loew's Columbia Theater next Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. Miss Frederick's admirers will be keenly interested in the announcement that this new photoplay pictures the beautiful actress in the role of a lowly scrubwoman in a big office building. As a means of gaining the money needed to educate her boy she accepts the advances of a broker, but when he is on the path to success, she gives up her life of luxury and returns to her path and brush, in the last episode she sacrifices her life to save her son's sweetheart.

Only Mother Home, Others In Family Join War Forces

NEW YORK, July 4.—The whole Hackett family, with the exception of Mrs. Hackett, who is "keeping the home fires burning" at 179 Stockton street, Brooklyn, and May, fourteen, who is doing Red Cross work, has enlisted in the Forty-seventh Regiment.

Today the father, John C. Hackett, thirty-nine years old, and his sons, James, nineteen, and Andrew, eighteen, are in khaki. John saw service at the border last year with the Fourteenth Regiment.

Enlisting in the Forty-seventh is becoming a family affair. Among other recruits yesterday were August, William, and John Rubach, brothers. Another brother, Charles, is ill at present, but hopes to enlist later.

nounced for the last half of the week, pictures Sessue Hayakawa in the role of a Japanese who loves an American girl. He keeps his secret, but devotes his life to her happiness, and in the end goes to his death with the woman who stood in the path of the girl he loved.

Strand.

Wilfred Lucas and Lillian Gish, two prominent stars on the Triangle program, will be featured next Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday at Moore's Strand Theater in a problem story entitled "Souls Triumphant." It is a tale of modern American society life and both Mr. Lucas and Miss Gish are seen to excellent advantage. Many of the better known Triangle players appear in this story.

On Wednesday and Thursday Mabel Taliaferro will be pictured in a novel story of Irish life, entitled "Will of the Wisp." On Friday and Saturday Charles Ray, last seen in "The Pinch Hitter," will hold the screen in their latest film effort, "The Millionaire Vagrant."

The daily program will further include other first-run pictures and special music will be rendered by the Strand Symphony Orchestra.

Garden.

William S. Hart, delineator par excellence of Western characters, will headline the program at Moore's Garden Theater Sunday to Wednesday of next week in his latest photoplay masterpiece, "Wolf Lowry." It is a drama that shows Mr. Hart at his best in the character of a dominant ruler of the West, one who took his triumphs naturally and his great failure like a man. On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday beautiful Dorothy Dalton will be featured in an amusing comedy dramatic picture entitled, "Wild Winship's Widow."

Other pictures will be shown daily and special musical accompaniments by the Garden Symphony Orchestra will be a feature.

Casino Theater.

"The Unwritten Law," a photoplay which features Patricia Michelson, a noted grand-opera singer, will provide next week's principal attraction at the Casino Theater. It is said to present a powerful story of modern life and its problems in a manner that will hold the attention of the spectator in a close grasp.

The management of the Casino announces that during the summer months the usual matinees, except those of Saturday and Sunday, will be dispensed with, the first showings being scheduled for 6 o'clock.

Glen Echo Park.

Glen Echo Park today is entertaining a host of holiday amusement seekers. Dancing will start at 4 o'clock and will be continuous until midnight and a special program of motion pictures and other features are on the bill for tonight.

For Sunday the extra attraction in addition to the regular diversions will be a series of concerts in the afternoon and evening by Minster's big band. Motion pictures and other free features, dancing, and a long list of fun providers are on the daily bill at the park and admission is always free.

Colonial Beach.

With the return of the Steamer St. Johns to her former trips, Colonial Beach has again become the mecca for many Washingtonians. The resort has been made more attractive than ever by the addition of numerous devices and bathing facilities are excellent. The next excursion will be made to the Beach at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, to be followed by another at 8 o'clock Sunday morning. The first of the tri-weekly forty-mile moonlight excursions down the Potomac will be made Friday, leaving the wharf at 7 o'clock and returning at about 11 o'clock. Refreshments for the dancers and a good cafe are provided.

Central Coliseum.

In observance of Independence Day, the Central Coliseum has arranged noteworthy patriotic features which will share interest with the dancing events tonight. The hall has been tastefully decorated and offers every facility for an enjoyable evening. Excellent music is always the rule, while trained instructors are always at hand to assist the beginner in mastering the latest and more difficult steps. Perfect ventilation, aided by many powerful electrical fans, keep the hall at a comfortable temperature.

NORWEGIAN HELD AS SPY.

LONDON, July 4.—Alfred Sagen, a Norwegian, has been arrested in London charged with espionage in behalf of Germany. According to an official announcement, the case is regarded as of great importance, and Sagen's admirers will be keenly interested in the announcement that this new photoplay pictures the beautiful actress in the role of a lowly scrubwoman in a big office building. As a means of gaining the money needed to educate her boy she accepts the advances of a broker, but when he is on the path to success, she gives up her life of luxury and returns to her path and brush, in the last episode she sacrifices her life to save her son's sweetheart.

MARCONI PROVES COURAGE BEFORE FEIGNING ATTACK

NEW YORK, July 4.—Marconi, the wireless wizard, according to the New York Sun, thinks women could be better radio operators than men and could fill the most responsible Government positions on ships, if—

They could rise superior to the distractions caused by men wanting to while away the tedium of a voyage by courting them; and if

They could conquer the excitable emotional tendencies that seem to be characteristic of women; and if

They would remember that the contents of the messages they send and receive must be regarded as confidential and not divulged of anybody whatsoever.

Proof of Bravery.

If any person living has the shadow of a doubt of Marconi's being a courageous, even a daring man, let that person take note of the fact that the inventor made these statements sitting in the midst of and entirely surrounded by women and girls, feminine pupils at Hunter College and the Marconi school in the art of sending messages on air waves.

There were thirty women, championed by Mrs. Herbert Sumner Owens, and they had called on Marconi in his suite at the Ritz Carlton to hear the truth about women as wireless operators. They got it. And it was, on the whole, agreeable, though not entirely definite in its bearing on the important question of whether the 125 radio pupils at Hunter and the Marconi school will get good jobs when they finish training. But they learned that Signor Marconi considers women more satisfactory telephone operators than men, because their ears are keener and their voices pleasant, and he later to phone after 10 o'clock at night, at which hour the masculine invasion of the switchboard ceases.

Feminist Learning.

In fact, he seems to have rather a feminist leaning. He was going to bar the news of New York from the interview until he was informed that the reporters who waited at the gate were all women. Then he smiled reluctantly and said, "Let them come in."

Immaculately attired in a snow white uniform was Signor Marconi, with some imposing decorations, which he had picked up of time to adjust after Mrs. Owens and her young charges were announced, because she had considerable difficulty arranging the procession that paraded from the elevator on the eleventh floor to the Marconi suite. First she placed them two by two, and then up came Mrs. Elia Haggin, who claimed some authority on the ground that her nephew is a wireless man and she knows Marconi, and Mrs. Haggin said the arrangement must be changed.

The Ideal.

"Have them three by three," she said. "It will be much more imposing. And good gracious, the idea of not putting the uniforms in the front row!"

For some of the girls were in khaki uniforms with fifty little caps and some in street clothes. Everybody saw the justice of Mrs. Haggin's criticism and the pretty brunettes in pink voile and the blue girl in embroidered taffeta who thought they were to have the glory of leading the charge on Marconi were yanked from their places and three efficient looking young things in khaki were placed in the van.

"Now one, two, three, march!" cried the leader of the First Feminine Wireless Brigade, and in this order they marched upon Marconi and soon he was seated in their midst listening with a sort of inscrutable smile to Mrs. Owens telling him how she had foreseen the war long ago and how, because of her daughter, Miss Elise Owens, wanting to study wireless, she had organized those classes at Hunter College and the Marconi school and how they used to be affiliated with the National League for Women's Service but left now with the new with the National Amateur Wireless Association. And other things like that.

Reconciled Anyway.

Marconi appeared not exactly enthusiastic, but reconciled, especially after Mrs. Owens told him she was so sorry she had had such short notice of the interview, as if she had known the day before, she could have brought the whole class of 125.

"What, here? What would we have done with them?" inquired Marconi, and appeared to think that everything has its compensations.

It was when the inventor was beginning to feel more at ease, even noticing the uniforms, feeling the khaki between his fingers and remarking ap-

Credit Lacking, They Furnished Own References

LEXINGTON, Ky., July 4.—Representatives of 100 firms from almost as many cities gathered in Caltetburg to attend the trial of the forty-six mountaineers who are accused of fleeing manufacturers and jobbers all over the United States to the extent of $250,000, by their organization of two banks and fifty stores which never existed.

Credit men in the big cities, accepting the authenticity of references from a supposed bank, dumped big quantities of goods of all descriptions into Magoffin county.

The agents found that one $20,000 wholesale house was a deserted log cabin and that a "State bank" was a stable. Several women are also under charges, but the men are accused of luring them in by promises of big profits.

provingly that it was rainproof, that the second blow descended upon him.

The Last Straw.

"Photographers are waiting down stairs," said a timid male voice on the outskirts. Marconi threw up his hands and his excitable Italian secretary, who had been sorely tried before by a belated sub sister drifting in in the middle of things, exploded right there.

"But you must realize that Signor Marconi is a very busy man," he cried. "How many photographers? Seven? But it is terrible! It would take a month."

"They will take the picture all at once," pleaded the timid male voice. "And it will go all over the country."

"Am I to be taken with the ladies?" asked Marconi resignedly. It appeared that the ladies had a sort of idea that he was—and so he was with Miss Helen Campbell, who holds a license to send radio messages, standing at his right hand.

PRISON FOR FRAUD.

ADMITTS HE SET FIRE TO HOUSE WHERE TWO DIED

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 4.—Hamilton Knickerbocker, thirty-six, a farmhand, confessed today to Sheriff Elmer J. Conklin that in addition to burning down the barns on the sheriff's farm, five miles from this city, on Saturday night, he had set fire to several other places, including the dwelling in which George A. Voebrugh and his aged wife were burned to death on the night of December 12, 1912, at Pine Plain, N. Y.

Knickerbocker was arrested at the scene of the latest fire early Sunday morning, and has since been under examination in jail here.

Today the sheriff said that confessions of Knickerbocker had cleared up the long unsolved Voebrugh murder mystery.

William Wood, a farmer, two years ago asserted it was he who fired the Voebrugh home for the purpose of burglary. The authorities followed up his statements and found them untrue.

Sheriff Conklin today said that he had reason to believe that Knickerbocker was telling the truth, and that a charge of murder in the first degree and arson would be placed against him at once.

LOW WAGES IN MILLS LEAVE BABIES TO DIE

Low wages of fathers, making it necessary for mothers to leave home and work to help support the families, is chiefly responsible for the death of 277 out of every 1,000 babies in Manchester, N. H. This information is contained in a statement issued today by the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor.

The wages paid the fathers are less than $400 a year, a great number of cases, and only 6 per cent of them are receiving as much as $1,250 a year. Half of the fathers are getting less than $650 a year.

Chinese Emperor Must Wed Twice and Rear Two Families

If the new Emperor of China, Hsuan Tung, retains the throne until he becomes of age he will be required under an old custom to marry two wives and rear two families, according to the New York Tribune. The necessity of his double marriage arises from the fact that he was made the adopted son of two Emperors of China. There was a famous feud between the late Emperor of China and the late Empress Dowager. In 1898 the Empress Dowager had the Emperor cast into prison, where he was held, under imperial auspices, until released in 1900. In 1902 the feud was well on the way to healing, and, as the Emperor was without an heir, a marriage was arranged between the Emperor's brother and a daughter of General Jung-Lu, one of the Dowager's principal supporters.

Adopted Twice.

The marriage took place in 1905. The marriage settlement provided that if a son should be born to the union he should ascend to the throne on his becoming of age. In 1906 Puyi, known as Hsuan Tung, was born, and another provision of the marriage contract was carried out, that the son should become the adopted son of the Emperor Kuang-Hsu and also of the preceding Emperor, Tung-Chih, who died in 1875. That fact requires him to take two wives upon becoming of age.

The troubles brought upon the country as a consequence of the acts of the court under the influence of the Empress Dowager presented an opportunity for the progressive elements of the nation, led by persons who had imbibed the spirit of Occidental institutions through being educated in America and Europe, to set their forces to work providing for the time when they might overthrow the monarchy.

Powerful Supporters.

The main event awaited was the death of the Empress Dowager, who during her lifetime was surrounded by a powerful group of supporters and who wielded the military power of the nation.

One day in 1908 the Empress Dowager was taken very ill. A sudden calm running suddenly into the palace and announced to the Emperor the death of the "Old Buddha," as she was called in derision in imperial circles. The Emperor immediately sat down and wrote a decree ordering the execution of Yuan Shih-kai.

Directly afterward, however, the empress returned, saying the dowager was still alive.

The Emperor thereupon struck the decree ordering the execution of the future President of China in his

Beginning of Revolution.

On the night of the 10th the viceroy's yamen was in flames, and Li Yuan-hung, deposed as President of China by the imperialist coup of last Sunday, was leading the revolutionary forces in the open. The viceroy fled to Shanghai, where he died of cholera on the day that the yellow jacket was taken from him upon orders of the regent.

These occurrences marked the beginning of the republican revolution which overthrew the dynasty and set up a representative republic.

The printing art—and it is truly so termed—has been called the "art preservative of all arts." The power of the printed word awakened the world from the lethargy of the Dark and Middle Ages and has been a major factor in the establishment of civilization.

A mighty power stands behind the printing press. It fosters education and spreads the light of knowledge. Applied to the needs of your business, printer's ink will blaze the path to success, if properly applied.

Your letter-head, your catalog, or other printed matter is the mirror which reflects your business. If they appear cheap, so will appear your business in the eyes of your prospective customer. That is why you cannot afford to intrust such an important matter to the typo or to the printer who has not the best interests of his art at heart.

Speaking of Washington printers in general, the ideals of the art have become standardized. Many thousands of dollars have been expended in modern equipment, bringing the several plants to the highest state of efficiency. They employ only expert workmen—men who take pride in their calling and who concentrate on the sole idea of giving you the best work of which they are capable.

Weigh these facts seriously—give them the most careful consideration. Can you afford, and can your business afford, to save a few pennies or a few dollars at the most, by sending your work to out-of-town printers, at the expense of quality and result-getting efficiency?

Next week's article will be written by Mr. Lewis M. Thayer

DISTRICT TROOPS TO BE MOBILIZED IN THREE WEEKS

The District National Guard will be mobilized three weeks from today and drafted into the Federal service, preliminary to departure for a training camp in one of the South Atlantic States to prepare for service on the European battle grounds.

Secretary of War Baker has officially announced that the mobilization of the national guard of the entire country will be completed along lines originally planned, which provide that the men will be called out in three increments, on July 15, July 25, and August 5.

No Delay in Call.

The District troops are included in the July 25 call. This dispenses of a suggestion that the mobilization of the guard would be delayed until August 5. Objection to the delay was made by governors of several of the States, who advised the War Department that national guardsmen and their employers had already made their plans and that any change in the date of mobilization would interrupt industry.

Uniforms Service Date.

The guard will be drafted into the Federal service as of a certain date, probably July 15, so that there may be no inequality in the relative rank of officers such as would follow if the formal drafting of the force should be done on different dates.

A date for the first drafting of selective conscripts for the national army will be set by Secretary Baker in a few days, when announcement will be made of the final plans of conducting in Washington the gigantic lottery which is to draw the first army of three-quarters of a million from the total of nearly ten millions of men registered last month.

BOMB IN COAL CARCO.

HAVANA, July 4.—In unloading coal from the Danish steamship Neva, which has just arrived from Newport News, dock laborers found a small package of dynamite with a fuse attached. On examination the dynamite was found to have been made up in the form of a cartridge such as is used in coal mines. A few weeks ago an explosion in coal which was being unloaded from the American steamship Lackawanna caused two deaths.
